Serena Sabak's first 3

By PAT WELLS Weekly World News

NEWS psychic and astrologer Serena Sabak.

The first three months of 1997 are going to be filled with fun, excitement, romance and cold, hard cash for people born under every star sign!

That's the sensational prediction from Weekly World News psychic and astrologer Serena Sabak, who says the "peculiar alignment of planets and stars as we enter the New Year foreshadows a fabulous new beginning for all mankind.

"I anticipate a period of enormous good fortune that will benefit each and every one of us in some special way in January, February and March," she said. "The year, quite literally, is starting off with a bang."

Here, exclusively for NEWS readers, is Serena's outlook for the first three months of 1997.

ARIES
MARCH 21 - APRIL 19

January: Exciting travel opportunities are just around the corner. Although it might seem unlikely now, you will be called on to visit influential friends or family members you haven't seen in years.

February: Prepare to take advantage of an out-of-the-blue and somewhat offbeat moneymaking idea.

Trust your instincts — this opportunity could make you rich!

March: Now's the time to enter sweepstakes and lotteries. Your chances of winning are at least doubled — and in some cases tripled — thanks to rare astrological influences.

TAURUS
APRIL 20 - MAY 20

January: You will reap a cash reward for a kindness you showed in the past. Fight the urge to squander this money. Investment is strongly advised.

February: A powerful person has his eye on you. Play your cards right and reap the benefits!

March: Treasure awaits you at a garage sale or flea market. Focus your attention on antiques and old paintings — you could find a masterpiece!

GEMINI
MAY 21 - JUNE 20

January: Someone who competes with you in love or business will vanish from your life. Expect fireworks in romance!

February: A cash windfall could end money woes, possibly forever. Prepare yourself mentally because the sudden wealth could create you problems.

March: Friends help you in ways you never dreamed of — while a complete stranger provides you with the key to long-awaited spiritual enlightenment.

CANCER
JUNE 21 - JULY 22

January: A former love unexpectedly shows up on your doorstep and strangely enough, brings the peace of mind you've been searching for.

February: Your dedicated efforts either at home or on the job are finally recognized — and this time, you'll receive the cash to prove it.

March: Keep your eyes peeled wherever you go. Expect to find somebody's lost treasure — and reap a substantial reward.

LEO
JULY 23 - AUGUST 23

January: This is a big month for you, socially speaking. You'll find several opportunities to meet new people — and at least three of them are in a position to help you financially.

February: Temporary setbacks are blessings in disguise — and eventually turn to gold.

March: People find you especially warm and friendly, leading to a romantic interlude and deep friendship with someone who truly has your best interests at heart.

VIRGO
AUGUST 24 - SEPTEMBER 22

January: You could have an exciting opportunity to move into a new house or apartment. This is the right time to do it — and the move will put you closer to a person who can boost your career or help you financially.

February: You'll hear vicious gossip about someone you love. Ignore the lies and your relationship will soar to heights you never dreamed possible.

March: The focus is on money. Sweepstakes wins are not only possible, they're probable. Enter all the contests you can.

LIBRA
SEPTEMBER 23 - OCTOBER 23

January: Telephone calls and cheery notes brighten your life. Be alert to moneymaking opportunities. You'll have several to choose from.

February: You could find an exciting new love through a mutual friend. Go slow. This relationship will change your life if you allow it to age and mature like a fine wine.

March: A gift of money changes everything. Accept it graciously and invest wisely. With money worries out of the way, you can focus on more important things — such as yourself, your friends and your family.

SCORPIO
OCTOBER 24 - NOVEMBER 21

January: You could get a financial windfall straight away — just don't spend it as fast as you get it!

February: If you moonlight or take a part-time job, the door will open to an exciting new career. Romance is highlighted. Explore the possibilities without inhibition!

Rich dentist sued for peeping on women in ladies' room

ACCUSED: Dr. Jere Zarkin categorically denies the woman's allegations.

VIEW of toilet as seen through peephole hoped to exist.

By JACK ALEXANDER/Weekly World News

HARRISBURG, Pa. — A rich and respected dentist is being sued by two former female employees, who claim he spied on them through a peephole when they went to the bathroom.

Dr. Jere I. Zarkin's shameful sexual shenanigans were exposed when the women found the peephole in the wall of a room adjacent to the bathroom, the suit alleges.

A month later, they smeared graphite around the peephole and went into the bathroom. The women claim Dr. Zarkin emerged from the adjacent room later with black marks around his eye, forehead and forearm.

"For about eight months, the women had heard noises in the adjacent room whenever they relieved themselves or tended to other female needs," said their lawyer, Patrick Lauer Jr.

The women — identified only as Jane Doe and Mary Doe — quit the jobs they'd held for four years and reported the peephole incident to cops, who told them no crime had been committed. Then they filed the civil lawsuit asking for unspecified damages.

Dr. Zarkin, 49, denies the allegations, said attorney Josh Lock, who added the suit amounts to a shakedown for money.

"Dr. Zarkin categorically denies their allegations, and furthermore, the intentional nature of their actions is demonstrated on a tape recording which we have," Lock said.

Attorney Lauer said the wealthy dentist tried to settle with the two women, but balked when they wanted $25,000 each.

"He admitted to them and to me that he peeped on them," Lauer told the NEWS. "He said he wanted to settle it quietly, but did not think that amount of money was fair and reasonable."

The "peeping Tom" section of the state's crime code applies only to peeping into a home at night — not a bathroom. But Dr. Zarkin could be charged with disorderly conduct or harassment.

Man swallowed by whale & LIVES!

Outside of the Bible, there is only one verified account of a man who was swallowed by a whale and lived to tell the tale.

Back in February 1891, James Bartley, a seaman on the Star of the East, was aboard a launch pursuing a whale when the giant sea monster tipped the boat over, spilling him into the water.

The 24-year-old sailor was given up for lost, until crew members cut open the stomach of the captured whale — and found him inside, unconscious but alive.

Bartley's skin was chalk white from the whale's digestive juices — and the skin was tender, he lay strapped to a bunk, resting like a lunatic.

As soon as the ship pulled into port, the modern-day Jonah quit the sea and spent the rest of his life as a shoemaker.

Pet dogs can save children from lead poisoning, says new study!

A CHILD'S BEST FRIEND: Your pooch could give the first warning sign of lead poisoning in your home.

By JAN HAYES / Weekly World News

The family dog may be your child's best friend — by providing early warning signs that can save the youngster from lead poisoning, a new study shows.

"Dogs often show signs of lead intoxication before children, and the signs in humans are more subtle than in dogs," declared veterinarian Dr. Stan Casteel.

The signs of lead poisoning in a dog include chronic vomiting over a four- to five-day period, complete loss of appetite and, in some cases, seizures.

Young children and dogs are both low to the ground, where lead paint chips may be found. Both are also apt to put foreign objects in their mouths. So lead poisoning in a dog is a good indication your child may be ingesting lead, too.

Lead poisoning in children can cause diminished mental performance and impaired learning ability.

Lead is no longer permitted in paint — but nearly 90 percent of America's housing still contains lead paint, according to a Centers for Disease Control and Prevention spokesman.

If you suspect your dog is suffering from lead poisoning, take the pet to a vet and have a blood sample drawn to determine lead concentration in the blood, Dr Casteel advises. The test costs about $10.

If the results indicate lead poisoning, small children in the house should then be tested for lead. That test costs $30 to $100.

Treatment for a child with lead poisoning includes the drug succimer, which flushes the lead out of the body.

Marry a younger guy — you'll live longer!

Ladies, you can add years to your life by tying the knot with a younger man!

That's the conclusion of a new university study that found that 90 percent of women whose husbands were 6 to 14 years younger than they were lived longer than expected.

On the other hand, 47 percent of women wed to men 6 to 14 years older died sooner than anticipated.

Researchers believe younger husbands encourage their wives to be more active physically, to eat nutritious foods and maintain an active interest in life. Senior Highlights reports.

REAL-LIFE THE X FILES

Aliens retrieved from crash site may still be alive, claim English UFO investigators!

AGENTS Scully (Gillian Anderson) and Mulder (David Duchovny), right, investigate the unexplained in the TV series The X-Files.

It's like something straight out of TV's The X-Files!

The British army secretly recovered alien corpses from a Welsh mountainside, following a flying saucer crash.

What's more, they also rescued several LIVE alien survivors — but have simply pretended nothing ever happened!

That is the shocking claim of English UFO investigators who say a retired serviceman has come forward with details of the episode.

By MIKE FOSTER
Weekly World News

According to the soldier, two dead aliens were found on the slopes of the Berwyn mountain range and then shipped by truck to a top-secret research facility at Porton Down, Wiltshire.

The astonishing story bears a close likeness to the U.S. government's alleged cover-up of the crash of a UFO near Roswell, N.M., in 1947. In that case, the Air Force first reported — and then denied — that a wrecked flying saucer had been discovered.

Many UFO experts believe that four alien bodies were recovered and taken for study at a secret Air Force base in Nevada known as Area 51, featured by the hit movie Independence Day.

The more recent incident occurred near the remote Welsh villages of Llanddarfel and Llanderfel in 1974, after frightened residents reported seeing a light streak across the sky and plummet to Earth with a thunder-like sound.

The army officer told UFO researchers he was one of the soldiers sent to the crash site, where they were ordered to load a pair of bodies onto a truck and then to drive to the secret base.

"The boxes were opened by staff at the facility in our presence," said the eyewitness. "We were shocked to see two creatures, which had been placed inside decompression suits.

"When the suits were fully opened, it was obvious that the creatures were not of this world. The bodies were about five to six feet tall, humanoid in shape, but so thin they looked almost skeletal covered with skin."

The man — who has not been identified — claims other soldiers later told him they had shipped live alien crash survivors to the base! The British government is remaining tight-lipped about the report, with the Defense Ministry claiming to have "no knowledge" of the incident.

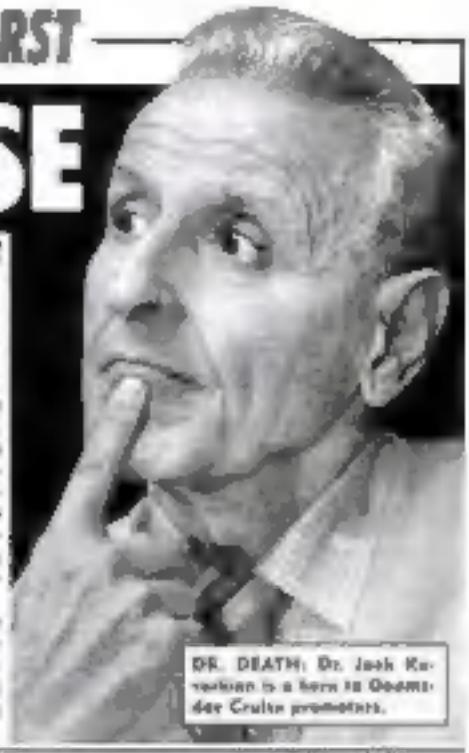
DOOMSDAY CRUISE



DR. DEATH: Dr. Jack Kevorkian is a hero to Doomsday Cruise promoters.

By LILA SCHAVANDT / Weekly World News

Ship will be sunk with hundreds of terminally ill people on board in world's most stylish mass suicide!

FORT-DE-FRANCE, Martinique — Fans of "Dr. Death," pathologist Dr. Jack Kevorkian, have come up with a novel idea for terminally ill people — a luxury cruise that ends with a stylish mass suicide!

The fun-filled voyage, called the Doomsday Cruise, will feature seven days of the best in food, service and entertainment. After visiting major ports in the Caribbean, the vessel will sail to a romantic spot, the crew will scuttle the ship, then abandon it with its suicidal passengers aboard.

"We'll have everything for them — right to a band that plays while the ship goes down," said Emile Sauvern, a terminally ill cancer victim who is organizing the novel event from his home in Martinique. "They'll go to their deaths enjoying life to the hilt. Best of all, they won't have to die alone. They'll die with special friends made in the intimate setting of a tropical cruise. They'll be able to party together, talk to one another — and even hold one another in the final moments."

Sauvern says the maiden Doomsday Cruise, which will be dedicated to his hero Dr. Kevorkian, is tentatively scheduled for August 1997. The cancer victim says he hasn't been in touch with Dr. Death, but he's sure he'd approve of the terminal trip concept.

"I know he'd be very supportive of such a creative new concept in the death industry," says Sauvern, 52. "He believes in making death as comfortable as possible. We're hoping that someday all these death ideas will be completely accepted. Who knows? In a few years Dr. Kevorkian's suicide machine and death cruises may be just two of many exciting options for finishing your life."

Folks who are interested in the cruise — which will cost approximately $3,000 per person — are encouraged to contact Sauvern at Doomsday Cruise Lines, Inc., in Fort-de-France.

Approaching hoofbeats

END OF THE WORLD Prophecies

WASHINGTON — The Bible's Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse are coming to Earth in the fulfillment of Bible prophecy that proves the end of the world is at hand!

That's the word from the famed evangelist Dr. Billy Graham, who declines to give an exact date for the end but flatly states:

By CRAIG MORRIS
Weekly World News

"I have heard the distant sound of hoofbeats ... are on the horizons of our — and seen the evil rid-... lives. There is serious trouble

FAMED EVANGELIST Dr. Billy Graham describes how the world will end in his Earth-shattering new book, Approaching Hoofbeats: The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse.

OMINOUS SIGN: The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse, as described in the Bible, are headed toward Earth, says Dr. Billy Graham.

THE 4 HORSEMEN OF THE APOCALYPSE

of The Billy Graham

ahead for our world, for all of us who live in it.

"It will be a time of nuclear conflagrations, biological holocausts and chemical apocalypses rolling over the Earth, bringing man to the edge of the precipice.

"History will 'bottom out' in the battle of Armageddon," he continued. "We already see its shadow creeping over the Earth.

"It is estimated that 40 wars are going on somewhere in the world at any given time," continued the evangelist. "Any one of them could be the beginning of the 'beginning of the end.'"

Dr. Graham expressed his grim but ultimately hopeful vision of man's future in his landmark book, Approaching Hoofbeats: The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse (Ann Books, New York, $4.95).

> The day of The Lord will come like a thief. The Heavens will disappear with a roar. The elements will be destroyed by fire, and the Earth and everything in it

The hope, as he points out, is found in the words of Jesus Christ, who promised to return to Earth before mankind is annihilated — and establish Heaven on Earth.

The problem, continues Dr. Graham, is the period of trial and tribulation, of pestilence, plague and world war, that we face before Christ returns.

In fact, in Matthew 24:22, Christ himself said: "If these days had not been cut short, no one would survive."

For those who think the end will come out of "nowhere," Dr. Graham points out that the end, in many ways, has been creeping up on mankind for years.

From the poisoning of the environment with pollutants of every description to the stockpiling of enough nuclear warheads to destroy the world 17 times over, the seeds of our own horrifying destruction have already been sown.

And yet, he notes, quoting 2 Peter 3:9, 10: "The day of the Lord will come like a thief. The Heavens will disappear with a roar. The elements will be destroyed by fire, and the Earth and everything in it."

Before that cataclysmic event horribly comes to pass, said Dr. Graham, mankind faces the terrible ire and wrath of Satan who, according to Revelation 6:8, will kill one quarter of the population of Earth — over a billion people. The "spiritual death" of billions more will impoverish the world. Drought, famine and pestilence will contribute to global starvation and suffering.

Millions will go mad with pain and terror. Disease, possibly worse than AIDS, will sweep the globe, contributing to the horrifying scenario that eventually leads to Armageddon itself.

And then, "suddenly, chaos grips the universe," said Dr. Graham. "An earthquake shakes the entire world, no Richter scale could measure its fury.

"There is a complete eclipse of the sun.

"In fact, reports John in Revelation), 'the sun turned black . . . the whole moon turned blood red, and the stars in the sky fell to Earth, as late figs drop from a fig tree when shaken by a strong wind.'"

Only then, said Dr. Graham, will the misery turn to joy — after God closes the books on human history and establishes Paradise on Earth. "Before judgment falls, however, God always warns," said Dr. Graham. "And lest you be frightened by the specter of misery to come, you should really rejoice, because Christ tells us in the next to the last verse of the Bible, 'I am coming soon.'"

WATER FOUND ON MOON IS ASTRONAUT PEE!

By ALEX MORGAN

Forget about all the hullabaloo over scientists finding ice on the moon — now red-faced NASA officials have discovered the frozen liquid came from a couple of astronauts who had to relieve themselves during moonwalks back in the 1970s!

"This is perhaps the most humiliating episode in the history of the U.S. space program," said an inside NASA source, who asked to remain anonymous. "When the ice was first discovered it was obviously very exciting news — and in their rush to make an announcement, several high-ranking officials forgot to check all the facts."

Primary among these facts was the chemical composition of the ice — which is identical to human urine.

"When the chemical components were first identified, it was like someone had dropped a bottle in the NASA headquarters," the source said. "It was like a urinal hose had been played on everyone at once."

The source said the astronauts who left the Apollo 11 and 12 missions on the moon have been identified but their names will not be made public.

"Quite obviously they didn't relieve themselves the same way we all do — or in the words of one golf course," the source said. "Astronauts' space suits allow them to empty their bladders at any time they need to, and the urine is stored in a special pouch.

"They can discharge the contents of this pouch whenever they want. They did this while they were on the surface of the moon. And now all these years later there has been a terrible misunderstanding.

"Originally we thought we'd found a huge frozen lake on the moon — and it turned out to be just a small patch of frozen human urine."

NASA refuses to identify the astronauts who left the urine on the moon, for reasons of "personal confidentiality."

I drank human blood to cure my cancer!

VAMPIRE EXECUTION CAPTURED On Film — Shocking Weekly World News exclusive, Pages 24 & 25

By KEVIN CREED • Weekly World News

SANTA FE, N.M. — The medical community is reeling with controversy over the bizarre case of Lisa Dabuller — who recovered from terminal cancer after drinking human blood for six months!

Back in April, the 33 year old artist was diagnosed with a deadly incurable form of lung cancer.

"They told me to get my affairs in order and make peace with my maker," said the cheerful, good natured woman.

"But I wasn't about to give up without a fight. I read everything I could get my hands on about diseases and their cures. I learned that the ancient Eruadorian Indians drank human blood to cure leprosy.

"I decided to use it. I thought, what do I have to lose?"

Miss Dabuller obtained the blood from a friend who had been donating it. After drinking half a pint a day between May 1 and October 31, all signs of her cancer were gone.

She still has her broken and often ribs, X-rays and puzzle doctors, but as a testament to the power of ingesting blood.

The miraculous cure has spurred heated debate among experts.

"There are absolutely no scientific studies linking the drinking of human blood with cancer remission," said Israel Freeman, oncologist for Medicine Hats.

"I think it's not only patently offensive for [illegible] to drink human blood — it's downright dangerous. Miss Dabuller's case is a fluke pure and simple."

But some physicians disagree. "There is some anecdotal evidence that [illegible] can [illegible] cancer. The people [illegible]

Bill ISN'T to blame for getting caught with his pants down

I'm madder than Hillary with an empty jar of cellulite cream over the Paula Jones sex mess that's making our President's life miserable.

Just because this trailer-park bimbo says President Clinton dropped his pants in front of her in an Arkansas motel room doesn't mean a thing. Maybe he was getting ready to go to the bathroom, for crying out loud.

And besides, my sources tell me that Miss Hillary had cut Bill off for nearly three years while he was governor. There were even reports of Bill chasing Hillary around the governor's mansion for hours trying to catch her before finally giving up and retiring to his bedroom with a stack of Playboy magazines.

But hey, if Hillary was my wife, I wouldn't want to catch her either unless I was damn desperate.

So who am I to blame our President for chasing everything in skirts. Hell, my English bull terrier, Dodger, once ran right through a brick wall when he got the urge.

Let's face it, folks. Hillary Clinton is 100 percent responsible for getting Bill into this fine mess.

And what makes me so positive Hillary must be all she had to do to keep Bill from drooling after a little shopping at Victoria's Secret and hop in the sack once in a while. But unfortunately, you'd have had to use a car jack to get her legs apart when Bill got frisky.

And we wonder why the president went rolling in the hay with Gennifer Flowers!

Bill Cleaver would have had a better sex life as a monastery chaperone with Hillary.

I don't know what she was thinking when they made Chelsea, but she must have chugged a bottle of Jack Daniel's per diem. In other words, she only came that one time. Hillary doesn't even remember it.

I may be a tad old-fashioned, but I think that if wives don't put out anymore anytime their husbands have a God-given right to go looking for some gal who will.

Anybody got Paula Jones' phone number?

BOSS LOCKS EXECS IN A MINUS-20° FREEZER — TO SPEED UP THEIR THINKING!

By RANDY JEFFRIES

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — Computer company president Alan Lambreen has found an efficient way to speed up corporate decision-making: When a problem comes up, he locks himself and his department heads in a walk-in deep freeze until they come up with a solution!

They sit on blocks of ice at an ice bag table and work it out.

"Temperatures reach 15 to 20 degrees below in that freezer," declared Lambreen, 46. "We're in there in our three piece suits, no hats or gloves. Nobody wastes time on bare-brained ideas when frostbite could be just minutes away."

Since installing the 30 by 30 foot freezer in his office building four months ago, his computer company's profits have tripled.

Lambreen came up with the concept after an efficiency expert analyzed his company.

The analyst told him they overlong management meetings were giving the competition the jump on them.

"One day, during one of our meetings, the air-conditioning was acting up," said Lambreen.

"We were all cold and anxious to get out of that room.

"We put our noses right down to the grindstone. We solved our problems and got out of there in record time."

From there it was a small step to installing the freezer.

Before each meeting, Lambreen orders his secretary to lock them in and not to let them out under any circumstances until they've reached the decisions they went in there to make.

Vice president Lenna Schaum believes the cold air not only forces the executives to be efficient, it also makes them think more clearly and come up with better ideas.

"I believe the cold speeds up circulation in the brain," says Mrs. Schaum, 49.

"So ideas not only come faster, they're better."

Lambreen asked that the name of his company not be used in this article, for obvious reasons.

"Many people we deal with are very conservative," he says.

"Even though we've tripled our production over these last four months, we don't want to lose the business of those who may think the freezer technique is frivolous or wacky. So we don't publicize it. But I can assure you it works."

WHY TAKING RISKS CAN IMPROVE YOUR LIFE!

Taking risks from time to time can be good for you by making your life richer, more exciting and more satisfying, says a psychologist.

"As we get older, we tend to be more cautious," Dr. Herbert Hoffman says. "Many of us become so set in our ways, so afraid of change, that we're unwilling to deviate from rigid routines.

"But people who take an occasional risk find life more exciting and are less likely to become bored and depressed than those who play it safe."

You can inject a sense of adventure in your life by following these tips, according to Dr. Hoffman:

● Take small risks as part of your daily routine. For example, try a new restaurant even though you risk being disappointed. Or take up a new sport even though you may be embarrassed by your lack of skill.

"Risk losing a couple of bucks by placing a small bet on a lottery or football pool."

● When you find yourself afraid to take a chance, imagine the worst thing that could happen.

For example, if you're anxious about taking up a new sport, ask yourself, "What's the worst that could happen?"

If your answer is, "I'll make a fool of myself," ask yourself, "Then what?" If you answer, "People will laugh at me," ask yourself, "Then what?"

"If carried to extremes, such questions and answers point up the ridiculousness of your anxiety and encourages you to follow through on a risky experience," Dr. Hoffman added.

● Cultivate adventurous friends. "Adventurous people radiate a contagious enthusiasm for new experiences that will help you overcome your reluctance to venture more daring," Dr. Hoffman said.

"They'll show you how risks can make your life more rewarding."

SPACE ALIENS DESTROY AFRICAN VILLAGE!

EYEWITNESSES described the invaders as hairless creatures with black, inhuman eyes

PHOTOS ABOVE provide a startling contrast of the village of Mulenge before and after the savage attack

By MIKE FOSTER

BANDUNDU, Zaire — A band of ruthless space aliens descended on a small, prosperous town near here, plundered it of all its gold — and then burned it to the ground!

That is the astounding claim of eyewitnesses who survived the night mare attack.

"They came out of the sky like bullets in three enormous spaceships," recalled horrified farmer George Makoso, one of only 60 people who escaped the devastated town of Mulenge alive.

"They strode through the village square firing powerful weapons left and right. Those of us who could ran and took cover in the jungle — the others were incinerated where they stood."

Before the incident, the idyllic village — too small to appear on many maps — was a peaceful vacation site with only 110 year-round residents, situated on the bank of the tranquil Kasa river. It was home to several wealthy families, a resort hotel and a bustling marketplace renowned for eye-catching gold items.

But on December 7 at about 11:30 a.m., all hell broke loose.

"When the saucers appeared, everyone ran to watch them hover," said Makoso. "Then the spaceships landed, and about two dozen of the hairless creatures with black, inhuman eyes poured out.

"I watched from the bushes as the menacing invaders marched through the marketplace scooping up everything gold they could find — from statues to jewelry. Then they went up to the village square and began firing their weapons at the buildings."

SURVIVOR George Makoso

As one of the saucers rose gently above the village, it fired a deadly parting shot that set the entire village ablaze, said Makoso. "It looked like it had been hit by an A bomb."

The fiery attack began at 11:30 a.m. — and then it stopped. The government of Zaire is keeping a tight lid on the crisis, officially denying any saucer attacks have taken place.

But UFO researchers consider the incident an ominous sign. "We can only hope that these were renegade aliens — not acting as part of a larger plan," noted one expert.

GAL SUES BOSS FOR SEXUAL HARASSMENT

...after he uses the Heimlich Maneuver to save her life!

By MIKE FOSTER / Weekly World News

TAMPA, Fla. — Curvy waitress Gina Wrenford is suing her boss for sexual harassment — after he used the Heimlich Maneuver to save her life!

"It was horrible," Miss Wrenford told Weekly World News. "He kept pulling me tight against him and I could feel his big, meaty hands all over me. Afterward my clothes reeked of his cheap cologne.

"I've never been so humiliated."

The strange legal saga began on a mid-August day Miss Wrenford, 27, was eating a free meal at a table in the restaurant kitchen before beginning her 3:00 p.m. shift.

"I always make sure that the serving staff are well fed," said portly 44-year-old Roger Paradise, the manager and owner.

Suddenly the shapely brunette began to choke and turn blue. She lurched to her feet, gesturing frantically at her throat.

A cook and two other waitresses looked on in horror — but the young woman's boss sprang into action.

"Luckily I'd learned the Heimlich Maneuver on a first aid course a couple of years before," explained Paradise.

"I stepped behind Gina like you're supposed to, wrapped my arms around her diaphragm and exerted force."

A large chunk of beef came flying out of the mouth of the stricken waitress and she was able to breathe again.

"Gina seemed relieved and grateful," said the restaurant owner.

Paradise was stunned two weeks later when Miss Wrenford quit and told him in a letter she was planning to file suit against her

Photographer captures female bloodsucker's last moments on film!

By GEORGE SANFORD

"Shut up and die, you bloodsucking bitch from Hell!"

That is what brutal Czech cops barked as they ruthlessly executed an alleged female vampire just 15 miles from the city of Prague.

Photojournalist Sven Vlkrant caught the appalling scene on film — and watched as the heartless thugs dragged the screaming victim out into the midnight, ending her life.

"It was one of the most outrageous abuses of human rights I have witnessed anywhere in the world," said the Swedish newsman, who spent two years covering the war in Bosnia.

"There was no trial — these men acted as judge, jury and executioners."

The extraordinary drama unfolded in late November when Vlkrant received a call from the police — asking him to show up at an abandoned estate sandy after dawn.

"They said a missing girl was holed up in an old boarded-out building," he recalled.

"They told me she was an aspiring model and wanted me to have her out by asking to

...all with the intent the intruding girl, named Lita.

After a moment, she emerged pale and looked to be about 17.

"But the police later told me she was much older at least 34. They said she'd been preying on young children and had even eaten a baby, which disgusted me."

The girl told Vlkrant she could help him and wanted him to shoot the dark recesses of the building. Flash and was just about to pull when the police sprang their trap.

They seized the struggling girl and bound her in chains. "They dragged her into the open and hauled her ...pleaded for mercy, but they only called her names."

Vlkrant says he could hardly believe what happened next. "She began to ...ply fade away until there was nothing ...her clothes and the lingering ...pillar.

"The officers showed no reaction ...just stood around poking at her clothes ...a stick and smoking cigarettes.

Far from attempting to rescue the ...dent, the unidentified policeman ...cake as many pictures as he could.

COMMON MYTHS THAT CAN RUIN YOUR MARRIAGE

Feeling down about your marriage? It may be that some myths are getting in the way of true happiness, says an expert.

Here are some of the most common myths — and the truth behind them — from psychologist Bruce Baldwin, author of Getting Better Together.

By ELAINE ROBERTS
Weekly World News

MYTH: Our marriage would be better — if only my partner would change.

FACT: To improve a marriage, both mates usually need to change.

Start by working on your own faults and altering your love each other. But when you try to change your partner's behavior. Your partner will change in response to the "new you."

MYTH: Love will conquer all.

FACT: Not so. When you're head-over-heels, it's easy to overlook problems. But when the honeymoon is over, you must try to accommodate the needs of your partner.

MYTH: If we were truly right for each other, we would never disagree.

FACT: It's healthy and normal for two people to disagree. But when you argue, don't resort to name calling or verbal abuse.

MYTH: Our children should come first in their lives, always.

FACT: Children complicate a marriage, but they don't ruin it. To keep your marriage strong, set aside time to spend alone with your spouse.

MYTH: Our marriage can be destined because we're so different.

FACT: Two people are always different — it's how you cope with those differences that matters. Be willing to compromise.

MYTH: Our marriage would be happier if we had more money.

FACT: Happiness doesn't cost a cent. Many unhappily married couples have more than enough money. They're unhappy because they don't know how to communicate with each other.

TWO people can always differ and — it's how they cope with these differences that matters. Be willing to compromise.

you can't enjoy life without extra money, you won't enjoy life with it.

MYTH: We'll do fine as long as we spend a lot of time together.

FACT: It's HOW you spend your time together that counts.

Talking only about work, the kids and the children won't help your marriage. When you're together, talk and do something you both enjoy.

MYTH: If we have a good sexual relationship everything else will work out.

FACT: Not true. Sex alone won't solve your problems. Be sure to show your partner non-sexual gestures of affection. Hold hands, snuggle on the couch, even help around the kitchen.

Let your partner know you truly care.

Babies raised from birth in water tanks

WATER BABIES will soon be allowed to eat food on dry land. They will never play like normal kids.

By MIKE FOSTER / Weekly World News

CONSTANTA, Romania — In a shocking case of child abuse, dozens of innocent children here are being raised from birth in water tanks — in a twisted effort to turn them into Aqua Kids.

That's the charge of children's rights activists, who are outraged by the scheme — and are calling upon Weekly World News readers to join in a letter-writing campaign to stop it.

"These adorable little boys and girls are being turned into virtual freaks," blasted Andre St. Martin, spokesperson for the Paris-based International Association for Child Safety.

"They will never know the simple joy of playing dodge ball, jumping rope or riding a bike. They deserve normal lives."

According to St. Martin, the Romanian government launched the experimental program six years ago after the wrecks of several ancient ships, laden with gold, were discovered in the Black Sea.

"Officials feel these Aqua Kids will be able to swim down and bring up valuable artifacts from such wrecks," said St. Martin. "They're convinced it could be a lucrative source of revenue."

The kids are all the offspring of single moms who went to government clinics to arrange abortions — and instead were steered to the Aqua Kid program. The children's moms give birth in a shallow pool of water, explained St. Martin.

"As soon as the tots pop out, they are encouraged to swim away from their mothers — who never see them again."

From that moment on, the tragic babies live in water tanks. The kids are forced to practice underwater swimming.

The Romanian government denies that any aqua child program exists. But St. Martin's group insists that by flooding their embassy with letters, we can make a difference.

"With the help of Weekly World News readers, we can humiliate their government into abandoning this despicable practice."

. . . as government tries to turn them into Aqua Kids!

HOW TO SNARE A HUSBAND — BY USING THE TECHNIQUES OF TOP AFRICAN ANIMAL TRACKERS

By AMIE FOSTER Weekly World News

Ladies, you can snare the man of your dreams — by using the proven techniques of top African animal trackers!

"What works for catching a lumbering rhino will also work on the average human male," declares anthropologist Dr Dyan Foelli.

Dr Foelli hit upon the approach after visiting Kenya and spending time with the Masai tribe, a tall, tough, crafty African warrior.

"I couldn't help noticing how many of the approaches used by these legendary hunters could be applied to personal relationships," reveals the expert, who teaches a seminar in New York City.

Here are some Masai hunting techniques and how to adapt them:

THE ART OF SILENT STALKING — The Masai make clever use of natural cover and quiet, indirect movement through the grass to fool their prey. "You must avoid spooking a potential mate," warns Dr Foelli. "Do everything you can to conceal the fact that you're NOT the object of your affection. For example, chat with him about how sexy and wonderful you find one of his friends or co-workers."

TEAMWORK — African hunters work together as a cohesive unit. Often some will encircle a lion, for example, and drive it toward the hunter who will ultimately kill it with a spear. "You and your girl friends can use the same approach," says Dr Foelli.

"Have one of your most beautiful friends come on to a man. Then report him, while another pal feeds him stories about how great you are. It'll be a cinch to catch his fright as the rebound."

DOCTOR
Dyan Foelli

LETTING YOUR PREY COME TO YOU — When pursuing a predator, warriors often pretend to be helpless and allow the beast to hunt them. "Likewise, you should let the male think he's seducing you," says Dr Foelli. "Appear as weak and vulnerable as you can."

BAITING THE TRAP — Every trap needs bait. The Masai will often use a live goat or baboon in Jars in a hungry lion. "Food also works for men," says Dr Foelli. "Work on your cooking skills. Every man dreams of a wife who can cook just like Mom."

RUNNING QUARRY DOWN — Kenyan trackers will relentlessly pursue their prey on foot for weeks on end — and to get the man you catch to propose may take the same kind of patience. "Just keep pestering him," says the expert. "He'll pop the question out of sheer exhaustion!"

New book tells gals how to apply the tried and true ways of some of the best hunters in all of Africa!

Man who drove mower 240 miles to visit sick brother dead at 76

SIOUX CITY, Iowa — A determined oldster who drove his power mower over 240 miles to visit his sick brother has died of a heart attack.

Alvin Straight's 1994 trip on his 1966 John Deere lawn mower was chronicled by TV hosts David Letterman and Jay Leno and radio host Paul Harvey.

Unable to pass a driver's license eye test, Straight loaded with clothes, gasoline, food and camping gear. He arrived at his brother Henry's home in Blue River, Wis., five weeks later.

HIT MAN DISGUISES HIMSELF AS BARNEY

By MICHAEL FORSYTH · Weekly World News

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. — A bumbling would-be hit man tried to rob not a housewife — while disguised as Barney the dinosaur!

...say cops

The disgruntled goon, decked out in the puffy purple costume of the lovable kid's TV character, knocked on the woman's door after her children left for school.

"When she opened it, he produced a semi-automatic handgun," said Independence police Sgt. Greg Wilkinson. "The suspect threatened the woman verbally — and she slammed the door in his face."

The harebrained scheme failed. "Barney" apparently panicked.

"He escaped in a large, yellow car," revealed the spokesman.

Cops recognized the woman's neighbors, but no one else saw the grotesque purple predator.

Sgt. Wilkinson says it's one of the weirdest uncleared robberies in recent memory. "We haven't had any other crimes committed by people in costumes lately."

LOVABLE purple dinosaur Barney is seen on the television show Barney & Friends.

Leprechauns' burial ground discovered

DUBLIN, Ireland — Archaeologists have been incensed during excavations that a race of "leprechauns" really existed on the Emerald Isle.

A team of researchers excavating a 2,000-year-old burial mound report that they have discovered the skeletal remains of 11 adult males — all under three feet tall.

And, in accordance with Celtic myths, beside each of the tiny bodies was a large pot of gold!

Sexless marriages

An shocking new survey reveals that nearly 5 percent of all newly married couples have signed premarital agreements that forbid them from having sex with each other.

A rise in the number of AIDS cases is to blame for the increase in sexless marriages, lawyers say.

The agreements contain a promise not to use the absence of sex as a grounds for divorce.

Lying politicians could lose their tongues

MANILA, Philippines — Politicians' lying to the voters during election campaigns could have their tongues cut out under a punishing new law.

"There's only one way to stop it," said legislator Antonio Reyes, who proposed the law. "Lying is getting so bad during campaigns that nobody knows what to believe."

Experts agree: Milkshake baths are GREAT for your skin!

SAFEST way to eat fresh cherries — with some fresh cherries while you relax in your creamy bathtub treatment

By ARNOLD TURNER

For decades, top models, high-society women and everyday housewives have loved taking milk baths to give themselves refreshing skin treatments. But health and beauty experts say now there's something new that's even better for you — milkshake baths!

That's right, for the ultimate bathing treat, turn your bathtub into a giant milkshake and wave your body down with it, say experts.

"It is the most indulgent and refreshing thing a person can do," said skin-care expert Boyd Walters.

And it does more than just feel good. It's also excellent for your skin.

Walters pointed out that not only does the chilly milkshake tighten your skin, the high fat content is especially healthful to it.

"It's almost like taking a bath in milk," he said. "For best results, you'll want to use rich fat milk, the richer the better.

"Before getting in, whip up a scrumptious vanilla milkshake with fresh cream and ice cream. Then pour it into your bathtub. An 8-inch tub needs about 2 gallons of milk and 2 gallons of ice cream.

"Then, sit back and relax. Sip your milkshake and eat fresh cherries. Be sure to spit the pits out the window."

Walters said the cherries are a delicious way to get an extra dose of vitamin C, which helps your body absorb the fat in the milk.

"Some people have a problem getting the bottom of the tub clean after a milkshake bath," Walters said. "But a pair of rubber gloves will solve that problem."

If you don't have a bathtub, you can still enjoy the benefits of milkshake skin treatments, Walters said. Just whip up a milkshake and pour it over your body in the shower.

"There's nothing quite like the feeling of using a healthy bath cleanser to wash off a delicious milkshake," he said.

Criminal gangs stealing organs from car crash victims — to sell for transplants!

NAPLES, Italy — Worried police are fighting a bizarre new type of crime in which gangs of highly skilled individuals appear at the scene of auto wrecks — and steal organs from crash victims to sell for transplants!

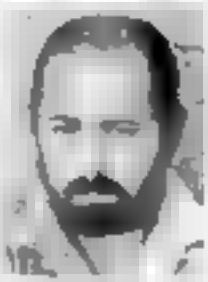
WOMEN WHO FELL IN LOVE WITH GHOSTS

A teenager is seduced by a lustful poltergeist . . . a widow keeps up her romance with her husband years after his death . . . a noted lady ghost hunter is whisked to the "other side" by her phantom lover. These are just a few of the many bizarre cases of women who've fallen in love with ghosts.

Famed paranormal investigator Robert Sterling has uncovered hundreds of such cases in his 14 years of research, and considers the most fascinating in his upcoming book Ghost Lovers.

"I estimate that as many as 1 in 20 women has a sexual encounter with a ghost in the course of her life," said the New Orleans-based researcher. "But few will ever admit it."



INVESTIGATOR Robert Sterling.

Women take a stronger connection to the supernatural than men, he explained. "By the same token male ghosts remain a powerful longing for physical pleasure and are drawn to living women."

Here, from the expert, are three of the most amazing cases.

● Pretty 19-year-old Annie Hampton was terrified and excited when her family moved into a Boston house long held to be haunted. One night an invisible being she later described as "male and powerful" crept into her bed and seduced her. The mysterious lover told the [illegible] and came to look forward to the nightly visits. Annie finally confessed after one of the family members heard her moans.

The girl's frightened parents thought an exorcist could drive the spirit away, but Annie begged them not to. Finally, the ghost disappeared on its own.

● Army nurse Genevieve Lafitte was devastated when her husband was killed in the trenches in World War II. But when the handsome soldier appeared at the door of her Paris home in Nazi uniform a month later she was full of joy. For 25 years she secretly cleaned and cared for her ghostly husband as if he had never died. Neighbors assumed the widow had gone mad. However, after Mrs. Lafitte passed away at the age of 84, several witnesses reported seeing the couple walking arm-in-arm along the Seine.

HUSH! Genevieve Lafitte was crushed when her husband died — until a ghost took his place

● Australian psychic Sylvia MacArthur was a member of a team investigating a haunted castle in Sussex, England, in 1967. On their first visit, the ruin was a shattered, deserted wreck overgrown with weeds. But when they arrived for a second visit, they found the castle restored to its former glory.

The two ended up sharing a night of passion in one of the castle's many rooms. Later, however, the woman was shocked to learn that the last lord to live in the castle was long dead . . . and the man she had encountered was a ghost.

Sylvia became obsessed and returned to the castle again and again — until one day the attractive 31-year-old simply vanished. Said Sterling: "Although the grounds were searched from top to bottom, no trace of Sylvia MacArthur was ever found."

'Weekly World News' pet

And the first place winner is — Boo Dog!

By JACK ALEXANDER / Weekly World News

A mischievous 3-year-old Maltese pooch who grins when he's done something bad beat out 2,177 entries from across America to win the popular Weekly World News pet photo contest.

"Every time Boo Dog smiles, we know he's pooped someplace, messed with the trash or done something else he shouldn't have," said the little dog's owner, Billy White of Nashville, Tenn.

Billy's wife Toni submitted the winning picture, saying:

"I believe Boo Dog should win because this picture is absolutely a case of catching the moment. He usually runs when he sees the camera because the flash frightens him."

Mrs. White wins the $500 first prize, a Weekly World News T-shirt and a year's subscription to the WWN.

Selecting the winner wasn't easy work for contest judges who spent hours sifting through thousands of cute photos of horses, parrots, chickens, bats, iguanas, goldfish, rabbits, raccoons, ducks and pet potbellied pigs. Dogs and cats were by far the most popular pets entered.

Second place in the national contest went to Chloe, a cute little kitty in a Corgi-Cats carton, and third went to three

AN INTERVIEW ALIVE

Copyright © [redacted] Weekly World News

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Elvis Presley is alive and well and living in the United States. Not only that, the soft-spoken, 61-year-old superstar wants his fans to know the truth — and has granted his first interview since he faked his death in 1977 to make sure they do!

By NICK NANN
[redacted] World News

"Am I really alive? Well, the last time I checked my pulse I was," Presley, scratching his balding head, told [redacted] reporter during a 90-minute interview at a secured location west of the city.

"Yeah, I'm alive," he chuckled. "But I wouldn't be if I hadn't made [redacted] hardest decision of my life back in [redacted].

"It hasn't been easy," he continued, his [redacted] trailing off into a whisper. "Without the Good Lord to see me through . . . I don't [redacted] . . . I wouldn't be here talking to you today."

So began what can only be described as the most astonishing and sought-after celebrity interview of the 20th century.

As I sat in the comfortable den of the five-bedroom ranch-style house Presley calls home several months out of the year, I couldn't help but pinch myself to make sure I wasn't asleep and dreaming — or dead and in Heaven.

The setting and circumstance had a dreamlike quality and I kept thinking, "Is this really Elvis? Is this real?"

It was real, of course. And the stage for this historic meeting had been set weeks earlier when I received a late-night telephone call [redacted]. All the time. Sometimes I write them off as the fantasies of crackpots or outright lies.

But something in this man's voice intrigued me — and I kept him on the line.

After a conversation of 15 minutes, I agreed to fly to Memphis to meet "Elvis."

Did I believe he would be there? Not really. It was too farfetched. Sure, I knew from long experience [redacted] Elvis had faked his death in 1977 and I had strong reason to believe that he was still alive.

But to think he was ready to come out of hiding and to think that he would grant me an interview — that was almost too much to hope for.

So I packed my bags and headed for the airport, telling myself that I'd be back in my office in a few days, probably with a good story but without the interview I had come for.

Two men in black suits met me in the terminal and escorted me to a black Ford for the drive to the interview location, which turned out to be a house Elvis uses for a few months each year.

They blindfolded me so I wouldn't find my way back. [redacted] after a drive of 45 to 50 minutes, I was "unmasked" and led into the house. And there, in the living room, was Elvis [redacted] to the flesh, balding, bearded [redacted] a little paunchy — but as handsome and charismatic as ever.

In the 90 minutes that followed, the King told me why he faked his death, how he faked his death, where he has been and what he has been doing. He also told me his [redacted] future.

Of course, Elvis didn't call it "faking his death." He called it "my transition."

Here, in his own words — tape-recorded for accuracy — is Elvis's story:

SEEING IS BELIEVING!

● On pulling off the hoax of the century: "Let me tell you — it's not hard to make people think you've died. It cost me $10,000 for the whole deception. And I had three very good friends who helped me pull it off.

"Basically, you just drop out. America is a big country and the world is a big place. I've walked through malls, visited campgrounds, gone to clubs in Vegas and New York City and even visited my own grave with nobody any the wiser. You'd be surprised at what a beard and a good wig can do for you."

● On his life in hiding: "I didn't get out of bed for almost three months. I didn't read a newspaper. I didn't watch TV. I didn't talk to anybody. And more importantly, I didn't take any medicine at all, not even an aspirin. I just rested and slept and dreamed. Then one day — I'll never forget it — I rose up off my pillow and felt like myself again.

"I knew what I wanted — peace of mind — and I knew how to find it. I knew I had to get away from the life, what stardom was doing to me, what stardom was making me do to myself.

"You know, prescription medications, working day and night, trying to live up to an image I was tired of living up to, taking care of my friends and employees, worrying about making enough money to support them, too.

"I kept thinking the only way out was suicide. I really came close to killing myself.

"One night, I broke down and cried. That's when I realized I had to get out, get off the merry-go-round. And I did."

care if I was Elvis Presley or Joe Blow.

"You know, the world is a beautiful place. God really knew what He was doing when He created it. And I get down on my knees and thank Him every day for it. I also thank Him for giving me the courage I needed to change my life when I was so frightened, desperate and alone."

● On his marital status: "Don't get TOO personal on me! No, really, I want to keep my private life private. I will tell you that I have had a relationship with a woman for several years now. But we aren't planning to get married anytime soon.

"Would I marry again? Well, I'll never say never — not after all I've been through."

● On his career: "I guess some people would like to know if I ever plan to record or perform again, and I must say I've thought about it. Being a celebrity, living in the limelight, is a burden, and after what I experienced in the 1970s, it's not something I would jump right into.

"Performing really scares me. I don't know if I could handle it. A couple of years ago I recorded 13 songs, some rhythm and blues and gospel that, at this point, are set to be released on an album after I die.

"It's sort of my gift to the fans who have stuck by me, by my memory, for all these years. I feel like I owe them something. They've meant more to me than you'll ever know."

● What he's interested in now: "Music is still a big part of my life, but I have other interests that are troubled times — the End Times — and I'm a firm believer that we are living in the last days.

"I'm sure I will live to see Armageddon. Because I'm sure it's not four or five years away. The beginning of the new millennium is when we'll see all the trouble.

"I'm living my life for the Lord and trying to be a better Christian every day. I want to spend my life in Paradise. The Lord knows I've seen my share of Hell on Earth."

● On his future: "I pretty much take it one day at a time. I still like to travel. And I really enjoy my time with myself. But I could see myself taking a little higher profile some day.

"I'm certainly in no rush. And I don't feel like I HAVE to do anything. Time will tell."

● On his decision to let fans know he is alive: "I have a good friend, a psychologist, who told me it was time to face my past, and she suggested that this was the way to do it.

"It's important to me to be able to look back and know I did the right thing, that I made the right decision. It's all in the coming to terms with your life and your actions and accepting yourself for what you've done and what you have done.

"I do and this is the proof of it. I'm a little nervous, but I feel good talking to you and my fans."

At the conclusion of the interview, Elvis invited me to have dinner with him — a big healthy salad that wasn't anything like the heavy fried food he was so famous for eating in his youth.

When we finished, his bodyguards took me back to the airport — blindfolded — and I couldn't tell you how! Presley and everything he stands for is dear to me, and I wouldn't do anything to bring unwanted to [illegible] which I don't. I'm not here any harm.

THE KING LIVES! "Look, I'm not going to get back to The King's house if I for I wouldn't do anything to bring unwanted to which I don't. I'm not here any harm.

pp Ru... ...ft confirm AMAZING CAT TALKS!

By JOE HAGAN / Weekly World News

MOSCOW — A cantankerous kitty named General Donsky has set the Russian scientific community on its ear — by talking up a storm!

Bewildered witnesses say the gruff-voiced General not only speaks more than 100 words — he actually carries on brief conversations.

"This is truly the most remarkable thing I have ever seen," said Dr Oleg Dobchenko, a Moscow State University psychologist specializing in animal behavior.

"At first I was very skeptical about the whole business.

"But now I am convinced he can communicate with humans."

Though the 20-year-old tomcat can say almost anything that crosses his mind, his favorite expressions are, "I want to eat," "Thank you" and "I'm going for a walk" — all spoken in Russian, of course.

"He's sure to speak up any time he's hungry or wants to go out for a stroll, and he can get pretty grouchy if he doesn't get his way," said his spectacled mistress Varvara Ivanova.

"But he can be polite, too. He always says 'Thank you' when he's fed and he always says it before he has something to say, he says it."

The swanky smoocher spoke for the first time 10 years ago as his unsuspecting owner was placing him into a closed basket in preparation for a train ride.

"He startled us almost out of our wits," Varvara recalled. "Needless to say, I was breathless."

Since that day, the talkative tabby has developed a vocabulary so extensive it leaves experts shaking their heads in amazement.

"Some words and phrases he's picked up from Varvara and her children and some he's learned from television," said Dr Dobchenko, who's spent hour after hour with the cat.

"But he has also developed a number of words on his own, which is very unusual.

"For example, he has a special word for 'Good bye.' He runs to the door to say 'Hello.' He watches TV and when he gets bored, he'll tell Varvara, 'Change the channel.'

"I'm convinced he's capable of carrying on full-scale conversations, but speaking is so unnatural for a cat that too much talk wears him out."

Although the frisky kitty still has a lot of life left in his step, Varvara knows that at his age, his days must be numbered.

"When General Donsky dies, I'm going to have his body given to science so they can learn his secret," said the distinguished mother of three. "Because you have to

BONN, Germany — Prehistoric ruins in the Neanderthal Valley reveal a surprising fact: Primitive man was status conscious and lived in communities composed of upper and lower classes!

The sites of the newly discovered caves, the quality of artifacts found in them and the view from the mouth of the caves indicate that there were clearly delineated social and class separations among cavemen!

The new evidence shows that 40,000 years ago the best hunters and gatherers lived in the best caves with the finest views and were the envy of their neighbors.

The cave homes of this highest level of primitive man were the finest available — as indicated by the size and location of the caves as well as the quality of wall drawings and artifacts found inside.

We had always believed the concept of social class began with the first economic systems," said archaeologist Dr. Peter Ehrhart, perhaps the world's leading expert on Neanderthal man.

But the age of this new site pushes modern economics by tens of thousands of years. There was no money — or barter — as we know it, but there were definite social distinctions.

For example, thanks to sophisticated carbon dating equipment, we're able to ascertain that while the upper class lived in caves with beautiful views and had a better quality of life, the lower class lived in caves with poor views and were subject to more cold drafts.

The caves of the upper class were richer in and artifacts. Their walls were covered with drawings of hunting scenes, and their floors were littered with the bones of animals they had eaten.

The caves of the lower class were poorer in artifacts and had no drawings on the walls. Their floors were littered with the bones of rodents and other small animals they had been forced to eat.

RICH CAVEMEN like this one lived in caves with beautiful views and decorated the walls with drawings, while poor cavemen lived in caves with poor views and were forced to eat rodents.

The more we study these caves, the more we realize that they can have ... The more we study these caves, the more we realize that they can have ... [illegible] ... [illegible] ... [illegible]

Will Clinton be impeached in 1999?

Dear Serena: My friend and I have a bet going and I'm hoping you can settle it for me now. I say Bill Clinton won't make it to 2000 as President — and I win $50 if I'm right.

My friend says I'm crazy and that Clinton will serve his whole second term and still be President in the year 2000. I figure there's going to be a lot of people trying to get Clinton in trouble, and some of his dirty dealings from the past will finally catch up with him. Please tell me if Clinton is going to be kicked out of office. If I have some inside information I'll probably be able to make some big bucks off some of my other friends, if you know what I mean. — Gambler in Maternity

Dear Gambler: Bill Clinton will still be President in 1999 and that will be the year his trouble really starts. As the pressure mounts all around him he will become increasingly withdrawn from the public eye, sometimes not leaving the White House for weeks at a time. He'll never be forced out of office but as he grimes increasingly somber he will consider resigning and making an early return to his beloved Arkansas.

Dear Serena: Will my parents disown me if I become a professional wrestler? For the past four months I've been competing in small towns in Georgia and Florida. But I've never wrestled on TV and since Mom and Dad live up in Vermont, I'm sure they don't know I'm doing it. When I was a kid, they never let me watch wrestling, so I'm afraid they'll strongly disapprove of what I'm doing. Now I have a chance to break into the big time and really make some good money — but I won't do it if it will damage the relationship I have with my parents. Can you tell me how they'll react? — Faithful Son in Lake City

Dear Faithful: They already know you've been wrestling — your fiancee told them two weeks ago. Don't worry, they are proud you have found a way to support yourself. They're eager for you to tell them the truth about what you are doing. They'll be very supportive of you.

he had a bad temper but the past five months he has been especially bad. When I came home from work last night he and our next-door neighbor were actually fighting in the front yard. I've told him if he doesn't straighten up I'm leaving him but he doesn't pay any attention. Please tell me if he'll get his act in gear? — Angry Wife in Hamlin

Dear Angry: Your husband will be losing down his terrible temper — after he gets his nose broken next month. Once he decides his brooding days are behind him, he'll start getting along with people.

Dear Serena: Who sent me a dozen roses last week? The card said "To my Honey Love, Your secret admirer." But since they came, no one has dropped a clue about who they're from. Serena, this is driving me crazy. Can you tell me who sent the roses? — Curious in Bakersfield

Dear Curious: I'm afraid I have some bad news. The roses weren't meant for you. The delivery man gave them to you by mistake. Please, call the flower shop and tell them the roses went to the wrong house. The man who sent the roses is worried that he hasn't heard from the woman they were supposed to go to.

Dear Serena: Will my restaurant ever be successful? I've been in business exactly a year and I'm losing more money now than when I started. Should I quit now before I go totally bankrupt or will things turn around soon? — Worried in Phoenix

Dear Worried: Hang in there. Add some fancy ice cream dessert to your menu and you'll start making a profit within a month.

The size and shape of your hand reveals your personality!

By SUSAN JAMISON
Weekly World News

The handiest guide to a person's character is . . . his hand!

That's right. The hand can reveal the secrets of an individual's innermost thoughts and feelings, if you know what you're looking for.

Analyzing the shape and size of a person's palm, along with the length of his fingers, can help you determine whether he falls into one of four categories: Water, Earth, Air or Fire.

Each category has its own individual personality traits, providing a revealing peek at a person's character.

"I've used this hand-reading system for years and it's incredibly accurate," says Dr. Catherine Blair of the Perrin Clinic in Paris. "By looking at people's hands, you can gain a basic understanding of their temperament — and use that information to guide you in your dealings with them."

To use the unique hand analysis system, first determine whether a person is right- or left-handed. Then measure his hand according to the illustration to the left.

After you have determined whether your friend is Air, Water, Fire or Earth, you can read all about him or her in the special section about the four elements on page 41.

Determine a person's "hand type" with this easy guide.

1. With a ruler, measure the distance from the tip of the middle finger to the crease where it meets the palm.

2. Now measure across the palm, from the web of skin at the base of the thumb over to the outer edge.

3. Measure the palm's length from the crease at

Meet the world's UNluckiest goldfish

TAMPA, Fla. — Petey the goldfish is America's unluckiest pet.

First, he almost died when his new owner, a 5-year-old boy, filled his bowl with orange juice instead of water "to give him more energy."

When the youngster's dad tried to correct the error, he accidentally dropped the bowl, spilling Petey onto the floor — where the hapless fish was nearly eaten by the family cat. To save their scaled buddy, the father and son raced to a neighbor's house and dropped Petey in their aquarium — unaware that it already contained a lone piranha!

WATER HAND

Long fingers, long palm. Water people are sensitive, caring individuals who tend to put others' needs before their own.

They are artistic by nature and highly idealistic. As lovers, Water people are wonderful because they are romantic and loyal. As leaders they are less successful, tending to hang back and avoid decisions whenever possible. Water hands often have a lacy network of fine lines, a sign that they are highly impressionable, complicated and emotional. Their long, slender fingers with tapering tips indicate they're patient and good with details.

FIRE HAND

Short fingers, long palm. Fire folks are fun-loving extroverts whose charisma makes them natural leaders. They're dynamic people who often gravitate to careers in sports or show-business.

Because they have such vitality and strength, people with Fire hands tend to enjoy challenges in life. They're passionate lovers who play the field early in life, but become truly committed when they marry. The wide fingertips of Fire hands indicate strength, optimism and originality.

Palms' secrets revealed!

EARTH HAND

Short fingers, square palm. The sturdy hands of Earth people indicate a dependable, solid individual with a tendency to be impatient.

Earth people are hard workers and emotionally stable.

They are physical rather than spiritual by nature and they relish time spent in the outdoors.

Earth people make terrific photographers, musicians and artists. They have few lines in their palms, but these are deeply marked, indicating their rational approach to life's problems.

AIR HAND

Long fingers, square palm. Air people are clever, witty, and creative. They're social butterflies who tend to stray when married.

Folks with Air hands crave stimulation. They make great journalists and they're whizzes with computers.

Air people like to make a good impression and they have varied interests. Their square, sturdy palms show they are emotionally stable and dependable.
